How important are well-educated coders?

Coding and billing mistakes bring lost revenue, compromised compliance—even implications of fraud or abuse.

They're critical if you want to:

- ✓ Eliminate errors
- ✓ Stay on top of code changes
- ✓ Reduce the chance of lost revenue
- ✓ Avoid compliance risk

WHY TAKE UNNECESSARY CHANCES?

Better training prevents potential losses

One incorrect code may seem like a minor issue. But a single code repeated incorrectly can blossom into tens of thousands of dollars in lost revenue. With more than 50 courses on both inpatient and outpatient topics in HCPro's Coding & Reimbursement eLearning Library, your staff will learn to code it right the first time, and every time.

You can select the courses staff need from the library of more than 50 titles, and check their understanding as they learn with "Test Your Knowledge" practice questions. You'll be sure they are applying codes correctly as they master the material.

There's a learning track for all coders, whether they need training on outpatient coding or inpatient coding issues. Beginner and intermediate-level course are clearly identified. You'll find a range of topics from anatomy and medical terminology to updates for veteran coders on ICD-9-CM and CPT changes.

Your staff will value the chance to:

- ✓ Refresh their skills
- ✓ Improve their coding consistency
- ✓ Earn continuing education credits
- ✓ Master new or speciality topics

You'll increase coder productivity as you:

- ✓ Train non-coders to become strong coding professionals
